Tree killer on the loose

A disease called Phytophthora ramorum is killing larch trees in this area.

You can prevent it spreading to other forests by:

- staying on the path or trail (dogs too)
- brushing off any loose mud and dirt from your footwear, clothing or bike before you leave
- thoroughly cleaning your footwear (and bike) at home, before your next visit
- leaving wood and plant material where it is

Thanks

Phytophthora ramorum* facts:

- it is not harmful to humans or animals
- public access can continue
- it can be spread via footwear and bicycle wheels

For more information: